FINANCIAL RESOURCES FOR FAMILIES WITH DM

CREATED 10/2012

When a family or individual is faced with a progressive condition such as DM1 or DM2 they are often presented with additional financial expenses as well as loss of a steady income. This section attempts to gather financial resources that are available on a federal/national level for persons living in the United States. By no means is this section complete; we invite you to share with us any resources you've identified.

This is an on-going project. We will add state-specific resources when we have compiled them.

Please be advised that each organization has its own eligibility and application requirements. None of these organizations are affiliated with the Myotonic Dystrophy Foundation. We hope you will share your experiences with us – let us know if you are successful in finding a good resource to help your family.

Government Resources

Social Security Administration

The Social Security Administration has two different programs that can help people with disabilities. The first program, Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI), pays benefits to you and certain members of your family if you are "insured," meaning that you worked long enough and paid Social Security taxes. The second program, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), pays benefits based on financial need. SSI is a Federal income supplement program funded by general tax revenues (not Social Security taxes). It is designed to help aged, blind, and disabled people, who have little or no income and it provides cash to meet basic needs for food, clothing, and shelter.

For general information about both programs check here to visit the SSA website:

<http://www.ssa.gov/disability/> Use the screening tool on this web page to help you determine which program may be appropriate for your situation.

Application to either of these programs takes some time. Some people seek the assistance of family or friends to help them gather the paperwork while others seek the help of an attorney. You can do it yourself. A comprehensive book on the process is Nolo's Guide to Social Security Disability: Getting & Keeping Your Benefits.

Another free source of help is Rebecca Pursley. She has multiple sclerosis and wrote an excellent document, "SSDI Tutor," a document that coaches you throughout the detailed paperwork process. Rebecca can be reached by email (rebecca047@comcast.net) or phone (206-232-7890).

The 2012 MDF Conference included a presentation by Daniel E. Fortuno of the Benefits Education Center. Mr. Fortuno offered advice about successfully applying for SSDI benefits. His presentation can be found on the MDF website (<http://myotonic.org/community/annual-conference/program>) or you can contact him at: www.benefitseducationcenter.com

Medicare and Medicaid

Medicare is a Federal health insurance program for people 65 years or older, people under 65 years of age with certain disabilities, and people of all ages with End-Stage Renal Disease. Medicare pays for hospital and medical care for elderly and certain disabled Americans.

Medicaid is a means-tested health and medical services program for certain individuals and families with low incomes and few resources. Primary oversight of the program is handled at the federal level, but each state establishes its own eligibility, scope of services, rate of payment for services, and administers its own Medicaid program.

Both programs are managed by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS).

Many individuals who qualify for Medicaid based on disability also receive cash assistance under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. In almost all states, SSI eligibility automatically qualifies an individual for Medicaid coverage. However, some states use more restrictive eligibility criteria than those used by the SSI program. This means that in those states (commonly referred to as 209(b) states) receipt of SSI does not guarantee eligibility for Medicaid. Individuals not receiving SSI but seeking coverage based on disability must demonstrate that they have an impairment that prevents them from performing "substantial gainful activity" for at least one year. Once a disability determination is made, the individual must then undergo an asset test and meet specific income requirements in order to be considered for Medicaid eligibility.

Housing and Urban Development

HUD offices offer rental assistance programs such as privately-owned subsidized housing, public housing, and housing choice vouchers. Additional resources exist for senior citizens, persons with a disability, and persons living in a rural area. You may also want to contact your state housing authority or your local public housing agency.

Women, Infants, and Children (WIC)

WIC focuses on protecting the health of low-income women, infants, and children up to age 5 who are at nutrition risk by providing nutritious foods to supplement diets, information on healthy eating, and referrals to health care. To see if you are eligible for WIC benefits, use this online tool:

<https://stars.fns.usda.gov/wps/pages/start.jsf>

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)

This program, operated by the United States Department of Agriculture, assists families in meeting their household expenses. By using SNAP benefits to purchase groceries, families can shift their budgeted grocery dollars to other uses.

Job Accommodation Network

The Job Accommodation Network (JAN) is the leading source of free, expert, and confidential guidance on workplace accommodations and disability employment issues. JAN provides free consulting services to individuals with physical or intellectual limitations to enhance their employability. JAN is one of several services provided by the U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Disability Employment Policy (ODEP). Services include one-on-one consultation about job accommodation ideas, requesting and negotiating accommodations, and rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and related laws. Although JAN does not help individuals find employment, JAN does provide information for job seekers.

<http://askjan.org/index.html>

Regional ADA Technical Assistance Center

The ADA National Network provides information, guidance and training on the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), tailored to meet the needs of business, government and individuals at local, regional and national levels. The ADA National Network consists of ten Regional ADA National Network Centers located throughout the United States that provide local assistance to ensure that the ADA is implemented wherever possible. The Center is not an enforcement or regulatory agency, but a helpful resource supporting the ADA's mission to "make it possible for everyone with a disability to live a life of freedom and equality." Contact a regional office for help with issues related to any of the ADA titles – Employment, Public Entities, Public Accommodations, Telecommunications, or Miscellaneous Provisions.

Andre Sobel Grants

The Andre Sobel River of Life Foundation (ASRL) helps with urgent expenses to allow single parents to stay at their child's bedside during catastrophic illness. The Andre Sobel River of Life Foundation works through a network of five pediatric hospitals that help families access ASRL assistance funds, typically within 24 hours. If your child is being treated at one of these centers, please contact your child's social worker directly for more information on how to obtain aid from the foundation's program, or e-mail ASRL at info@andriveroflife.org. <http://andriveroflife.org/for-families-and-social-workers/partners>

HealthWell Foundation Grants

The HealthWell Foundation provides financial assistance to eligible individuals to cover coinsurance, copayments, health care premiums and deductibles for certain medications and therapies. If you've been prescribed a medication and your insurance company covers it, but you still cannot afford the coinsurance or copayment required, HealthWell Foundation may be able to help by paying for part of your medication costs. Also, if you are eligible for health insurance, but cannot afford the insurance premium, the Healthwell Foundation may be able to help with your insurance premium.
